Vertical Summit Receives 2015 Golden Bridge Award

Advanced communications platform is recognized for delivering comprehensive unified communications functionality to small- and medium-sized businesses

Santa Clara, Calif., December 2, 2015—Vertical Communications®, a leading provider of business communications solutions, announced that its Vertical Summit™ communications platform has been named top Information Hardware solution in the 2015 Golden Bridge Awards competition. The announcement was made at the 2015 Golden Bridge Award ceremony in San Francisco in November. The Golden Bridge Awards are annually presented to innovators in a number of fields, including technology, marketing, media, and financial services.

Vertical Summit is a feature-rich solution that delivers an extensive UC feature set that includes mobility, and supports both VoIP and TDM networks and devices, resulting in optimum flexibility and cost efficiency. The Summit supports advanced UC and mobility applications for desktops and smartphones, giving office, remote and mobile workers easy access to a comprehensive range of features and tools including full presence management, click call capabilities, six-way videoconferencing, advanced call recording and reporting, unified messaging, auto attendant and automatic call distribution (ACD) capabilities.

“We are very proud that the Vertical Summit has been named a recipient of the 2015 Golden Bridge Award, which is positioned to satisfy the sophisticated communications and operational needs in a historically underserved market,” said Peter Bailey, chief executive officer at Vertical Communications. “Vertical takes great pride in delivering communications solutions that enhance common business processes, and help improve performance and profitability. We’re looking forward to build on the success of Summit—and our entire communications solutions portfolio—by offering several exciting new products that will provide even greater benefits and value to our customers.”
